Each year, Atelier Mondial, the TriRegio region's international exchange program, gives fifteen selected artists from all over the world the chance to spend several months working abroad. In return, the program hosts around twenty guest artists from abroad each year in its own seven residential studios on the Dreispitz. The exhibition Slowly Arriving focuses on this artistic exchange between the Basel region and the world, juxtaposing artistic positions from Basel, New York, Tokyo, Cape Town, and Yerevan and elsewhere. What remains of these encounters between different people, places, and artistic practices? What continues to resonate with people and in the art?

This exhibition is a collaborative project between Atelier Mondial and Kunsthaus Baselland and its directors Alexandra Stäheli and Ines Goldbach.
